TCU – FACTS

Student-athletes brought forth concerns re: CARA hours to the administration.

- Team meetings (including ones that were impromptu) were never accounted for in daily/weekly hour limits.
- Film review sessions of underwater workouts were also not accounted for in the daily/weekly hour limits.

---

---

---

---

---

---

TCU – FACTS

In addition to CARA issues, there were also coaching limitations issues.

- The head coach instructed student managers to engage in coaching activities with student-athletes.
- Two student managers provided technical and tactical instruction to student-athletes over the course of six months, which caused them to become countable coaches.

TCU – TAKEAWAYS

- Team meetings are CARAs.
- Film review sessions either observed or directed by a coaching staff member are CARAs.

---

TCU – TAKEAWAYS

- Student managers including graduate managers (often referred to as graduate assistants in many sports) are prohibited from providing instruction to student-athletes at any time.
- As a penalty for exceeding coaching limitations, the swimming and diving program reduced the maximum number of countable coaches (from six to five) for the entire 2018-19 academic year.

“As the COI has repeatedly warned, a prospect’s presence in an institution’s locale before enrollment creates an increased risk for violations of NCAA legislation.”

PROSPECT → STUDENT-ATHLETE

A prospect becomes a student-athlete when s/he:

- Enrolls and attends a class during a regular academic term (e.g., fall, spring),
- Enrolls and attends a class during a summer session,
- Participates in a regular squad practice that occurs before the beginning of any term, or
- Reports to an institutional orientation session open to all incoming students within 14 calendar days from the start of a term.

EARLY ARRIVERS

Coaches and staff should tell a prospect when to arrive to campus, but if a prospect decides to move to the locale early, the prospect cannot:

- Receive anything from anyone associated with SDA
  - Meals
  - Snacks
  - Cost-free housing
  - Gear
  - Equipment
  - Transportation
  - Most facility usage
  - Etc. etc. etc.
- Contact anyone off campus including student-athletes, noncoaching staff members, and boosters.

NCAA ALLOWABLE MOVE-IN DATES

General rule, freshmen and transfers may arrive in the locale the day before:

- The first practice if a sport is in season, or
- Classes begin for a session (summer or regular term).

Note: Housing may allow any incoming student to move into the dorms earlier than the day before classes begin (check with Bill Kennedy). But recognize the person is still a prospect . . .
